Tracy Rose-Tynes, MS, BSN, RN is the Manager of School Health Services in Cambridge. She has worked for the Cambridge Public Health Department for over 20 years. Tracy has extensively researched the impact of e-cigarette use on tweens. Her thesis entitled “The Relationship Between Tween Use of E-Cigarettes, Perceptions of Health and Academic Achievement” is the foundation of her vast knowledge encompassing teens, e-cigarette use and the many related health issues associated with it.

Tracy provides the facts, the most current research and the answers as to why this is such a dangerous addiction. Her presentation is engaging, captivating and eye opening. “Educating youth and adults around the issues of vaping has become my passion and with every presentation, I hope to change the trajectory of use and the illnesses associated with e-cigarette use.”

Tracy’s presentation was clear, concise and supported me in understanding the vaping crisis and how it is affecting today’s youth. I now feel better equipped to support my school community, students and parents in navigating this difficult trend.
